

If I just give you the name of a student I am worried about, can the Counseling Center call the student in for an appointment?

The Counseling Center does not make uninvited calls or invitations to students whom they are not actively serving. Our services are voluntary, meaning the student has to seek the service him or herself. In non-emergency situations, Counseling Center staff can consult with you about what you can do to encourage a student to use our services. Please consult the interaction guide found under staff resources.
